CHAIRMAN COLLINS'S ADDRESS.

Principles of the Democracy Ex-

THE STATE OF THE S o stand by your favor in this piace so often d by the foremost men in our great party is a motion of the highest character and an honor which I am profoundly grateful. a performing the delicate and difficult service to high you have assigned me I can scarcely hope to justify the wisdom of your choice. I shall at all times need a continuance of your induigence and courtesy, as well as your full co-operation, to promote order, decorum and good will until these proceedings are brought to a happy close.

We represent, in this convention, more than hirty millions of the American people. We bear their commission to act for them and their injunction to act with all the wisdom that God has given us to protect and safeguard the institutions of the lie as the fathers founded them.

source if they understood its meaning—the people ed along our eastern coast, with a sublime bereism never equalled, broke from all traditions, sestered along our eastern coast, with a sublime beroism never equalled, broke from all traditions, rejected all known systems and established, to the amazement of the world, the political wonder of the ages—the American Republic, the calld of revolution, nursed by philosophy! The hand that framed the immortal Declaration of Independence is the hand that guided the emancipated country to progress and glory. It is the hand that guides us still in our onward march as a free and progressive people. The principles upon which our Government can securely rest, upon which the peace, prosperity and liberties of the teople depend, are the principles of the founder of our party, the spostle of Democracy—Thomas deferson.

Our young men under thirty have heard more in their time of the cleah of arms and the echoes of war than of the principles of government. It has been a period of passion, force, impulse and emotional politics, so that we need not wonder that now and then we hear the question asked and scurcely answered: "What difference is there between the two parties?"

Every Domocrat knows the difference. The Democratic creed was not penned by Jefferson for a section or a class of the people, but for all; not for a dey or a generation, but for all time. These principles couses ved and expanded the Republic in all its better days. A strict adherence to them will preserve it to the end. So the Democracy of today, as in the past, believe with Jefferson in:

JEFFERSONIAN PRINCIPLES.

JEFFERSONIAN PRINCIPLES.

1. Equal and exact justice to all men, of whatever state of persuasion, religious or political.

2. Peace, commerce and honest friendship with all nations; entangling alliances with none.

3. Support of the State governments in all their rights as the most competent administrators of our domestic concerns and the surest bulwark against anti-republican tendencies.

4. The preservation of the General Government in its whole constitutional vigor, as the sheet-anchor of our peace and safety abroad.

5. A lealous care of the right of election by the people, a mild and safe corrective of abuses, which are lopped off by the sword of revolution where peaceable means are unprovided.

6. Absolute acquiescence in the decisions of the majority, the vital principle of republics from which is no appeal but to force, the vital principle and immediate parent of despotism.

7. A well-disciplined militia, our best reliance in peace and for the first moments in war.

5. The supremiety of the civil over the military antitority.

9. Economy in the public expense, that labor authority.

9. Economy in the public expense, that labor may be lightly burdened.

10. The honest payment of our debts and the preservation of our 10 lie taith.

11. Encouragement of agriculture and of commerce as its handmaid.

12. The diffusion of information and arraignment of all abuses at the bar of public reason.

13. Freedom of religion.

14. Freedom of the press.

15. Freedom of the press.

16. Freedom of the press.

18. Freedom of the person under the protection of the nabeas corpus.

16. Trial by jarles impartially selected.

Add to these the colden economic rule that no more taxershould be levied upon the people in any way than are necessary to meet the nonest expenses of government, and you have a body of priuciples to sin against which has been political death to every party hitherto; to sin against which in the future will be positical suicide.

True to these principles, the Democratic party fought successfully our foreign wars, protected our citizens in every clime, compelled the respect of all nations for our fine, compelled the respect of all nations for our fine, compelled the respect of all nations for our fine, compelled the respect of all nations for our fine, compelled the property and happiness to all our people.

False to these principles, the great Federal, Whig and Know-Notaing parties went down never to rise again, and we are here to-day representative of the party that has survived all others—the united, triumphant, invincible Democracy—prepared to strike down foreer the last surviving foe in November.

Our standard must be the railying point now and in November.

Our standard must be the rallying point now and in the future, for all good citizens who love and sherish republican institutions, who love liberty regulated by the Constitution and the law, who believe in a government of all the people by all the people and for all the people. DEMOCRACY AND THE MASSES.

DEMOCRACY AND THE MASSES.

This has been the saylum for all good men from over the earth who feel from want and oppression and mean to become Americans. But we invite and welcome only "friends to this ground and liegemen" to the Republic. Our institutions cannot change to meet hostile wishes nor "e so much as sensibly modified says by the peaceful and deliberate action of the mass of our people in accordance with the Constitution and laws of the land.

Whatever problems the present has, or the fature may present, so far as political action can affect them, will be dealt with by the American people within the law, and in the future as in the past the beople will find security for their liberty and property, encouragement and projection for their laduaries, peace and prosperily in following the pariy of the American masses, which will ever sheet them against the aggressions of power and monopoly on the ensities, and on the other the surryings of chaos.

While almost all the rest of the civilized world is darkaned by armies, crushed by kings or night-marded by conspiracies, we alone splay a beality peace, a rational liberty, a progressive prosperity.

We went to our political institutions, to Democratic staching, at least as much as to the exuberant soil.

The man is not a good American who, knowing fires of Democra'ic liberty alive till the dawn of a better day. If we were a party of misfortune, it must also be agreed that we were a party of undanated courses and inflexible principle.

Twenty-eight years ago the Democratic party, rent into fragments, heated by feuds that only time could aliay or punishment destroy, met, as it looks how, merely to settle in angry mood the terms upon which they should become exiles from power.

By their mad dissensions they elected to go to defeat rather than wait for the sobering influence of time to close the breach. To the younger men of that day the act seemed suicide—mitigated by inamality.

of that day the set seemed successful analty.

Their madness transferred to a minority of the American people the political Government of all. That party, whatever the honesty and respectability of its members, however patriotic its motives, was not broad or national at its base.

It had but one central idea, and when that idea was set in the Constitution and crystallized into law it ran a career of riot that appalled all men. The history of that period of political debaschery is too sad and familiar to Americans to be recited anew.

The Republican party, sometimes peacefully and sometimes by force, sometimes fairly and sometimes by fraud, succeeded in holding lower twenty-four years; till at last the American people, no longer condoning its faults or foraving its sina, horied it from power, and again committed to the historic party of the Constitution and the whole Union the administration of our political af-Fairs. We won by the well-earned confidence of the country in the rectitude of our purpose, by the aid of chivalrous and conscientious men who could no longer brook the corruptions of the Republican party. It was a great, deserved, necessary victory.

The administration of President Cleveland has triumphantly justified his election. It compets the respect, confidence and approval of the country. The prophets of evil and disaster are sumb.

What the people see is the Government of the Union restored to its ancient footing of justice, peace, honesty and impartial enforcement of law. They see the demands of labor and agriculture met, so far as government can meet them by legislative enactments for their encouragement and protection. eratic teaching., at least as much as to the exuberant soil.

The man is not a good American who, knowing what we are, by act or word, experiment or thought in any way will attempt to weaken the foundation of this aplended political structure—the Republic of the United States.

We meet to-day under conditions new to the Democrats of this generation. How often we stood in conventions in the past when to others it seemed as if the shadows of death closed about us, when the day of yeleral judgment.

It could not then be said that we met for spoils or personal advancement. We met to keep the value of those granted under any previous Admin-stration.

They see more than twenty-two million acres of land, recklessly and linguily hold by the grantees of the corrupt Republican régime, restored to the public domain for the b-neft of honest settiers.

They see the negro, whose tears of Democratic rule were played upon by demagagues four years ago, not only more fmily protected than by his pre-tended friends, but honored as his race was never honored before.

They see a shancial policy under which reckless lended friends, but honored as his race was never honored before.

They see a financial policy under which reckiess speculation has practically ceased, and capital freed from distrust. They see for the first time an honest observance of the law governing the civil establishment and the employees of the people rid at last of the political highwayman with a demand for trioute in one hand and a letter of dismissal in the other.

They see useless offices abolished and expenses of administration reduced, while improved in the cot have lifted the public service to high efficiency. They see tranquillity, order, security and equal justice restored in the land, a watchful, steady, safe and patriotte Administration—the solemn promise made by the Democracy faithfully kept. It is "an honest government by honest men."

If this record seems prostic, if it lacks the blood-thrilling elements, if it a not lit up with lurid fires, if it cannot be illustrated by a pyrotechnic display, if it is merely the plain record of a constitutional party in time of peace engaged in administrative reforms, it is because the people of the country four years ago elected not to trust sensation and experiment, however brilliant and alluring, but preferred to place the helm in a steady hand, with a featless, trustworthy, particic man behind it.

Upon the record and upon our earnest efforts, as yet incomplete, to reduce and equalize he burdens of taxation, we enter the canvass and go to the polic confluent that the free and intelligent people of this great constry will say: "Well done, good and faithful servants." BOLID DEMOCRACY.

Victory.

CLEVELAND'S ELECTION—A NEW ERA.

The day on which Grover Cleveland, the honest straightforward, typical American citizen which at that elections, took the cash of office in presence of the multitude—a day so lovely and no perfect that all nature scened subterantly to canciton and to celebrate the victory—that day marked the close of an old era and the beginning of a new ones.

It clos d the era of usurgation of power by the Federal authority, of lilegal force, of general contempt for constitutional limitations and plain law, of giarring soundals, profig at ewasts and unspeakable corruptions; of narrow sectionalism and close starters, of the reign of a party whose good work had long been done.

It began the era of perfect peace and perfect union—the States fused in all their sovereignly into a Federal Republic with limited but ample powers; of a public service conducted with absolute integrity and strict economy; of reforms pushed to their extreme limit; of comprehensive, sound and sais financial colley, giving security and confidence to all enterprise and endeavor—a Democratic Administration, faithful to its mirghty trust, loyal to its people.

We are no longer anditors, but accountants; no longer critics, but the criticised. The responsibility for the great trust of government.

We are no longer anditors, but accountants; no longer critics, but the criticised. The responsibility of the work is one produced by a willy, unscrappione and desperate foe. There will be no speec on the recommendation by which for the proposition by the criticised that there will not attempt to a commendate the business studied.

Every place was filled by men whose interest it was to thwart inquiry and belittle the new Administration. But the master hand came to the helm and the true course has been kept from the beginning.

ning. We need not wait for time to do justice to the obaracter and services of President Cleveland. Honest, clear-signed, patient, grounded in respect for law and justice, with a thorough grasp of principles and situations, with marvellous and principles and situations, with marvellous an conscientions industry, the very incarnation of firms set he has nobly fulfilled the promise of his country and written his name high on the scroil where it ture Americans will read only the names of me who have been supremely useful to the Kepublic. PACE THE ISSUE BRAVELY.

Fellow Democrats, this is but the initial meeting in a political campaign destined to be memorable. It will be a clashing of nearly even forces, and the man here or eisewhere behittle or underestimate the strength or resources of the opposition. But great as they are, the old Democratic party in conscious strength and perfect union faces the issue fearlessly.

In the Printing Trades' Section. The Printing Trades' Section of the Central Labor Union last night adopted resolutions declaring that the complaint against George Munro was not well founded and that Mr. Munro was entitled to recognition for a cheerful compliance with union regulations.

It was also received that some uniform rue cught to be made reparding the laying off of hands for an indefinite time and taking other new hands on.

The section declared that the f-reman of an office ought to discharge outright when an employee ceases to give satisfaction.
